Steve Jobs was born in 1955. He was a troublemaker but a curious child. At school, he studied only a few subjects and didn't study other subjects. Eventually, he dropped out of school. Then he studied calligraphy and learned about beautiful writing. He built small computers with beautiful fonts and sold them. He started his business at the age of twenty-one. His business was a big success.

He also learned Zen Buddhism and likes its simplicity. For example, he usually wore the same clothing every day. He wore the same black shirt and jeans. You can also see his simplicity in his products. They are always simple and stylish, right?

“Stay hungry, stay foolish.” This is a famous quote of Steve Jobs. He didn't like the poor design of old computers, so he thought very hard about good design. He never gave up on his dreams of new technology. Then he finally made the unique, beautiful design of the Macintosh computer.

He died from cancer at the age of fifty six in 2011. Even after his death, Apple is making new, unique and stylish products.
